ARGEST OF THE COURT

Suit Was Based on Killing of Lane McQuiddy by Collapse of Wall at Read House.

The largest verdict ever rendered the courts of Hamilton county was the one Thursday morning in the circuit court for $25,000 damages against S. R. Read, owner of the Read house, and John B. Carroll, former manager of the hotel. The verdict, which grew out of the death of Lane McQuiddy, which occurred several years ago in the hotel, was rendered jointly against Mr. Read and Mr. Carroll, and in the event it cannot be collected from one of the de-Mr. Carroll, and in the event it cannot be collected from one of the defendants it can be collected from the

Thursday morning Judge Oscar Yarnell charged the jury and at 11:15
the jury reported that they had found the defendants jointly guilty of negligence and had assessed damages against them to the sum of $25,000.

The death of Lane McQuiddy was one of the saddest that ever occurred in this city and caused sorrow not only in this city, where he was known by a large number of business men, but also in Nashville, where he was one and reared and where his uncle is head of a large printing establishhead of a large printing establish-ent which bears the name of Mc-ment which bears the name of Mc-Quiddy Printing company.

Mr. McQuiddy was a guest at the Read house, and shortly after eating his breakfast had gone into the writ-ing room to write his mother a letter. He had just written the words, "My Dear Mother," when an air tank ex-ploded in the room adjoining the writing room, causing the walls of the writing room to cave in and inhe writing room to cave in and in the writing room to cave in and in-flicting such injuries to Mr. Mc-Quiddy that he died several hours later. Shortly after Mr. McQuiddy's death, C. L. Sullivan and B. R. Mc-Kinney, the latter an employer of Mr. McQuiddy, filed suit as the ad-ministrators of the estate against S. R. Read and John B. Carroll. Some time later a suit which is now pendime later a suit which is now pend-ng in the chancery court was filed by Mr. Carroll against Mr. Read seeking to fix the liability for the necident. This sutt has never been settled, but as the result of the verdict in the circuit court Thursday morning Mr. Read and Mr. Carroll are held jointly liable. The case will be fought out through the state's highest courts.

FATE OF KELLEY POLLOW NOW RESTS WITH JURY

ARGUMENTS AND COURT'S CHARGE COMPLETED.

District Attorney Kennerly and W. B. Miller Present

Opposing Theories. Federal court opened Thursday morning with W. B. Miller, one of the attorneys for Kelley Pollow, on trial for receiving and disposing of government property, making the argument for the defense. He spoke for almost an hour and eloquently presented his theory of the case to the jury. Following him came District Attorney W. T. Kennerly, who argued for a like period as enthusiastically and eloquently as M. Mill. siastically and eloquently as Mr. Mil-ler. /The case then went to the jury and at 2 o'clock no verdict has been days and is the longest one tried dur-ing this session of court.

Attorney Miller dwelt at length on the testimony of Capt. Arnold, who stated Wednesday that it was humanly impossible to keep records of the number of shoes on hand at the reclamation depot, and from which Sergt. Will Pollow, brother of Kelley, is alleged to have stolen over 300 pairs and brought to his brother's store in Chattanooga. Mr. Miller said if Capt. Arnold had been permitted to testify in the court-martial pro-ceedings of Sergt. Pollow at Fort Oglethorpe last summer, there would probably have been no conviction of the soldier on the offense charge against him. At the time the court martial trial was in progress Capt. Arnold was out of Chattanooga en route to join his organization over-

The district attorney opened by saying it was no place or time for the jury to consider the effect the conviction would have on Pollow's mother or wife, but to consider four things which the government, he said, had proven without reasonable doubt. These are that the shoes were government property, that they stolen from the quartermaster partment at Fort Oglethorpe, and that the defendant, Kelley Pollow, was guilty of receiving them and con-cealing and disposing of them con-trary to the law. If he was guilty of any of these, said the district at torney, he was guilty of all three.

District Attorney Kennerly stated the mixup in records and their inaccuracy in the quartermaster reclamation department was just the thing Sergt. Pollow wanted, and that Capt. Arnold, who was in charge, furnished opportunities for Pollow to gteal shoes because of his slackness in keeping check of all materials and shoes on hand.

Being bold, said Mr. Kennerly, was a part of Pollow's game. He made this statement in referring to the evi-dence where it was stated Pollow would bring the shoes to his brother's store and place them in the from of the building rather than put then

During the trial attorneys for the defense stated that in their opinion Abe Silberman was guilty of receiving government property since he is said to have bought from Pollow several dozen pairs of shoes of the Will Give Two Liberty Bonds to Sol-diers at Big Celebration.

Following the recommendation of bearing to the effect that he was a berman to the effect that he was crook, and asked why it was, if the defense knew he was so crooked, that T. Pope Shepherd, one of Pollow's counsel, while he was assistant attorney-general for eight years, didn't have him arrested and punished. Following this argument Judge Sanford charged the jury. He fold the jurymen not to consider the sympa thetic side, as that was out of the case. He reviewed the arguments at length and said each side had pre-sented its theory admirably.
